The Biggest Nugget of the Season Was Unearthed Saturday

through a very clever business deal. Just took two dispatches and one telephone call to land 200 pieces of the finest Imported Corded Silk Mousseline that ever left the shores of France. They represent the cleverest colorings and patterns ever shown. Fancy Japs, Novelty Silks, or even Foulards, the acme of Summer Silks, are not to be compared with these beautiful and charming dainties. There isn't a single cheap design in all this vast assortment, nor an undesirable shade or tint. Every piece shines forth as an original and exclusive idea. We are as much pleased over this purchase as you will be when you come to buy. These very goods cost the New York agent 50c to land in this country, which would make them cost the consumer 69c a yard if they had been bought in a regular way. We are going to startle all Washington by placing them on sale to-day at

FUNK TURNS TO RELIGION

The Condemned Man Finds Solace in the Catholic Faith.

Father Maguire Administers the Sacrament of Holy Communion—The Prisoner Still Hopeful That He Will Escape the Gallows—Snell and McIn Both Still Downcast.

Frank W. Funk, convicted of the murder of William H. Brooks, and sentenced to be hanged in the District Jail on Friday next, yesterday embraced the Catholic faith, the sacrament of holy communion being administered to him by the Rev. Father Maguire, of St. Peter's Catholic Church. Funk, with many of the other prisoners confined in the jail, attended the services conducted by Father Maguire yesterday morning. After the service Funk appeared to be in excellent spirits. Since his confinement he has always appeared to be in good spirits, but never so contented as he was yesterday.

Since his imprisonment Funk's actions and behavior have been in marked contrast with those of the other prisoners, particularly those charged with or found guilty of murder. The others have appeared broken in spirit and morose. Not so, however, with Funk. Not for a moment since he was arrested and charged with the murder of old man Brooks has he appeared to have lost hope that he will be able to finally prove himself innocent of the charge. He said yesterday that he was not very much surprised at the result of his appeal to the Court of Appeals for the District. He expressed himself as confident, however, that the Supreme Court of the United States will reverse the decisions of both the Supreme Court of the District and the Court of Appeals for the District. In the event that he is not granted a new trial, and is made to suffer the penalty for the crime of which he stands convicted, he said there will be a day when the truth will be known as to who did commit the crime, when many persons who gave testimony against him will regret what they did.

Most conclusive evidence as to his innocence, he said, was shown by the condition of the heads of the man who was murdered and his wife, who was also brutally assaulted with the same instrument, an ax, with which her husband was killed. In each instance the testimony showed the victims of the attack had received six or seven blows. After referring to this part of the evidence against him, Funk called attention to his physique, stating that a man of his size and strength, on a mission of robbery, in daylight, would not have wasted time, to have inflicted fourteen or fifteen blows when two would have sufficed to have removed interference with his plans. The number of blows inflicted, and the nature of them, Funk contends, show that they were dealt by some weak person, perhaps a woman. This contention is in support of Funk's evidence at his trial when he stated that immediately after the murder was committed he visited the house of the Brooks family and there saw Sophia Brown, one of the daughters of the dead man, and a negro in the parlor. He also said that the daughter knows more about how her father met his death than she cares to tell.

There is no one to be one consolation to Funk in the turn affairs have taken in his case. As stated, he is confident that he will be able to have his case reviewed by the Supreme Court of the United States. He does not expect that this will be so in the case of Benjamin H. Snell, sentenced to be hanged the same day and at the same time that he is. Funk objects to passing into eternity from the same scaffold with Snell. Because of the different conditions presented by their cases, he feels that if he has to meet his fate on the gallows it will not be in company with the child-murderer.

Snell is as morose and sullen as on the day he was committed to jail. It is said he never introduces conversation with any of the other prisoners and returns very meagre answers to the few who speak to him. One day last week when one of the census enumerators called at the jail to make an enumeration of the inmates, Snell was asked to tell of himself. In answer to the question, "What is your name?" Snell is said to have replied, "I think it is Benjamin." The prisoner, it is said, was often heard to say, "No, I will not appeal to the President; it is no use." And then again, "I did not have the knife; I did not kill Turner." For some days last week McIn did not have any appetite, and he complained to Warden Harris, who asked him if it was any fault of the prison fare. He said he thought not, and the warden had the prison physician examine McIn. After treatment he was all right, and on Saturday ate heartily.

Olaf Palleasen, who was convicted of the murder of his wife, Josephine Palleasen, and sentenced to imprisonment in the penitentiary for life, is in much better spirits than he has been before his trial. Upon his arrival at the jail, after sentence was pronounced upon him, it is said he remarked, "Well, I saved my neck, anyhow."

Arthur Landon, convicted of the murder of Henry Bradley, and Nelson Vale, found guilty of the murder of Alexander Jackson, both sentenced to be hanged on July 14, are awaiting the action of the President upon their appeal for executive clemency.

IN THE DISTRICT COURTS

Equity and Criminal Business for the Present Week.

The Poole Will Case Hearing Drags On—The End May Be Reached in a Few Days—Litigation Over a Storage Tank—Injunction Asked Against the Standard Oil Company.

The fifth week of the hearing in the Nathan A. Poole will contest case No. 1, before Chief Justice Bingham, sitting for probate business. There have been several delays since the beginning of the proceedings, but all these taken into consideration it was not expected that the trial would continue nearly as long by half as it has. The attorneys on both sides, however, confidently expect that the end will be reached during the early days of this week.

There are a number of cases assigned for trial during the week in Criminal Court No. 1, but it is probable that some of these will have to go over until next week because of other business. Today and tomorrow, it is expected, will be taken up in the consideration of the trial of Randall Parsons, which was begun on last Thursday.

The only important case set for hearing in either of the equity courts is the final hearing in the case of John Oeser and others against the Standard Oil Company, in which the court is asked to enjoin the defendant from using a certain tank constructed on its premises in Southwest Washington for the storage of oils. The case has been on docket in the Supreme Court of the District for about two years. When first called up for hearing before Justice Hagner he granted the injunction asked for and the Standard Oil people took appeal to the Court of Appeals for the District, giving a supersedeas bond in the sum of $20,000 to secure the complainants in any damages they might sustain by the appeal being allowed.

The case was then remanded to the lower court for hearing on its merits, and during the last year or eighteen months both parties have been taking testimony in connection with the matter. It is expected that the case will come up for final hearing before Justice Bingham before the end of the present month.

NEWS FROM ALEXANDRIA.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., June 10.—A most delightful Sabbath attended Children's Day, which was observed in the Baptist, Southern Methodist, and Trinity M. E. Churches. The hymns, recitations, and addresses of the ministers and the teachers to the children were all suited to the occasion.

Alexandria Division, Ancient Order of Hibernians, held its annual meeting this afternoon at St. Mary's Hall and elected the following officers: President, John T. Sweeney; Division President, E. M. Birrell; Vice President, Michael Creggan; Recording Secretary, Michael McFarland; Financial Secretary, James T. McGowan; Treasurer, J. D. Normandy; Sergeant-at-Arms, James Roche; Sentinel, James Benet; Standing Committee, W. H. Sweeney, Chairman; Zora Hill, E. E. Lawrence, T. McGowan, and J. D. Normandy.

An alarm of fire at 1 o'clock this afternoon called the engines to the frame dwelling of Fanny Gilbert, colored, on Oronoko Street, between Patrick and Henry Streets. The neighborhood, largely inhabited by colored people, is filled with frame dwellings. The firemen went quickly to work and extinguished the flames.

A child of Otto Yenker, residing in Oronoko Street, was severely bitten in the leg by a bulldog this afternoon. The dog, which is usually chained, dug its way under the gate of Mr. Yenker's store and escaped into the street, where children were playing. Dr. Jones treated the wound. The dog was shot.

A colored boy, A. called "Hezekiah," is held at the stationhouse tonight charged with stealing Sunday papers from the doors of subscribers. He will have a hearing tomorrow.

REGISTER DENT'S OFFICE.
Changes Being Made With a View to Facilitating Business.

Louis A. Dent, Register of Wills for the District, is making extensive improvements in his office with a view of facilitating business. Many of the clerks, to whom original papers, such as wills offered for probate and returns of inventories, were assigned to desks in rooms adjoining the main office, will, as soon as the improvements are completed, be given desks on the north side of the court room. The bond clerk and the fee clerk will also be assigned to desks in the main office.

For the purpose of carrying out the plan for expediting the work of the office, Mr. Dent, during the last week, has been making arrangements for these changes. The railing in front of the rostrum upon which the Justice of the Supreme Court of the District sat while presiding in the Orphans' Court, has been removed and replaced by a new one. The new railing, however, extends around the north side of the courtroom, and behind this will be arranged desks for the clerks whose business brings them directly in contact with the current affairs of the probate court.

By Lee, colored, called for the protection of the police tonight against Lily Lewis, colored, whom she charged had attacked her with a razor. She had a bad cut in her right arm and also on her cheek. She was treated by Dr. Jones. Lily Lewis was arrested later in the night by Police-men Beach and Atkinson, and is held at the police station.
